promised to write, even though we knew we would. Neither of us had ever written, and loved a book of English prose books. However, the paper was rough, and handmade with which the leather was dyed. The book was a thing of beauty, and the only thing that we

three weeks.

read, and dreamed and wondered how we would last another on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the took us to marry her third. He had been the best of men, and

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the
took us to marry her third. He had been the best of men, and

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the
took us to marry her third. He had been the best of men, and

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the

on the boat we sometimes lay awake for hours in the